Thank you! I'll pass this along to my supervisor for approval, as well as to the purchasing department to place the order.

I look forward to reviewing the specification sheets, technical datasheets, drawings, and/or any other engineering data you can provide on these components. Ultimately, whatever our final flight solution ends up looking like, we will need to make sure it's qualified for human spaceflight.

Sincerely,

Sales quotation for x5 ignition systems using NASA spec compenents is attached. Thank you Michael. Will have the quotation for x70 soon.

In regards to availability, these components are made to order, and typically are a 3 week lead time. If there is an expectation to order x70 units or more at a time, we would have to prepare components ahead of time, otherwise we may not have stock of the specified components as they are custom. Without preparing, we would be looking at a 3 month lead time, otherwise they would typically be 3 weeks.

Best regards,
Mark Lepore
