

Section XVII: Expanded Evidence Detail – Ownership Sabotage & Asset Absorption

Overview of Allegation

The culmination of the alleged scheme at ECI Development Gran Pacifica is a deliberate strategy to sabotage ownership, push residents out, and absorb their assets into a Trust controlled by ECI insiders. This is achieved through a combination of legal manipulation, infrastructure neglect, psychological coercion, and financial deception. The result: homes and infrastructure built by innocent investors are quietly transferred into a centralized entity, often without their knowledge or consent.

Key Evidence

1. Trust Absorption Mechanism

- Homeowners build and invest in properties under the belief of direct ownership.
- Properties are allegedly placed into a Trust, with control held by Mike Cobb and Joel Nagel.
- Once residents leave, pass away, or are coerced out, the assets remain in the Trust—permanently removed from individual control.

2. Intentional Community Breakdown

- Infrastructure is allowed to deteriorate, creating frustration and hopelessness.
- HOA/HPR funds are allegedly misused, leaving no support for repairs or services.
- Residents are gaslit, isolated, and intimidated, encouraging them to abandon their investments.

3. Legal Loopholes & Concealment

- Trust structures are opaque, making it difficult for homeowners to verify ownership status.
- Signatures may be forged or hidden within complex contracts.
- Once absorbed, assets are shielded from legal challenge, especially across borders.

4. Post-Exit Exploitation

- After residents exit, homes are rented or resold under the Trust's control.
- Profits are allegedly funneled into private accounts or charities, with no benefit to the original owner.
- In some cases, the Trust may be used to extort governments, offering developed land in exchange for political or financial concessions.

Legal Implications

- Fraudulent Conveyance: Transferring property without informed consent.
- Racketeering: Coordinated effort to defraud through legal and psychological means.
- Constructive Eviction: Creating intolerable conditions to force residents out.
- Tax Evasion: Concealing asset transfers and income from authorities.
- Violation of Property Rights: Denying rightful ownership through deception.

Strategic Impact

This is the endgame of the alleged scheme:

- Innocent people build homes and communities.
- Through sabotage and manipulation, they are pushed out.
- Their assets are absorbed into a Trust, never to be reclaimed.
- The Trust becomes a tool of wealth extraction, geopolitical leverage, and systemic abuse.

Framing—this is not just legal fraud but a spiritual violation of divine law. It's about restoring justice, dignity, and truth to those who were deceived.

Recommended Actions

- Homeowners: Demand full disclosure of Trust status and legal standing.
- Legal Advocates: Pursue claims for fraudulent conveyance and constructive eviction.
- Governments: Investigate Trust structures used to bypass national laws.
- Media & Advocates: Expose the full lifecycle of asset absorption and its human cost.
